

BRINGING RECOVERY, GROWTH AND INDEPENDENCE TO OUR CLIENTS.

Chances are, sometime in your life you will know someone who has been affected by sexual assault, mental illness, homelessness or poverty. Many of our friends and neighbors in the Metro-East are dealing with these difficulties right now, and Call for Help is there to help them through these challenges.

Call for Help empowers people to overcome hardships and put their lives on a positive path. We help victims of sexual assault recover from the trauma; we help homeless young women with small children build skills to live independently; we help persons with mental illness who are homeless learn to live successfully in the community; we help individuals and families in poverty avoid homelessness and further disruption in their lives. We also link all our clients with additional resources in the community which can help ensure their long-term success.

In FY 2013 we took a major step forward as we put in place a plan to redirect funding from a longtime service, the suicide and crisis hotline, to a new daytime drop-in center for persons with mental illness. Planned for a 2014 opening, this center will offer resources to support these persons' continued success at stable community living, a service not available in the Metro-East today. To make this possible, the suicide and crisis hotline was phased out as of Aug. 31, 2013. The hotline had been utilized less and less as a number of other hotlines and support services have become available.

Other FY 2013 efforts to strengthen operations:

- We completed a successful transition of our accounting function from an outsourced service, to an in-house director of finance. This change will yield substantial cost savings and improve our staffing capacity.
- Call for Help earned four-year reaccreditation from the Council on Accreditation. Achieving reaccreditation involved an extensive review of agency programs, policies and procedures.
- Furniture is being updated in the Community Stabilization Program, thanks to grants from the Boeing-St. Louis Employees Community Fund, the Blowitz-Ridgeway Foundation, and the Diocese of Belleville CSMA Fund for Ministry.
- We continued to strengthen agency management and staff expertise.

Call for Help is building a strong foundation for our agency. We look forward to being the place where area residents turn when they face homelessness, sexual assault, mental illness or poverty, or need a additional supportive resources.

HELPING PEOPLE BUILD NEW BEGINNINGS

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

YEAR ENDED JUNE 30, 2013

BREAKING THE CYCLE OF HOMELESSNESS

Growing up in an environment of poverty, substance abuse, criminal behavior and other problems can leave a young woman with an uphill struggle. Lacking supportive family, job skills and a high school diploma, and parenting one or two small children, she may be unable to manage on her own and becomes homeless. The Call for Help Transitional Living Center provides a temporary home for these women and their children, and prepares them for independent living. Services include counseling, case management, help to finish a high school diploma or get a GED, assistance with entry into the workforce, and life skills classes to prepare for independent living. In the year just completed, the Transitional Living Center served 111 women and children with 11,102 nights of care.

A 19-year-old mother of a daughter, age 2, came to the Call for Help Transitional Living Center after leaving a dysfunctional, unsafe home occupied by 11 people. Once she became stabilized in the program, she began working part-time at a local discount store and enrolled in a medical assistant training program. She graduated from the training and passed her certification exam. She now is employed as a certified medical assistant. Call for Help worked with the St. Clair County Intergovernmental Grants Dept. to obtain financial assistance for her to set up her own apartment in the community. Through life skills classes, she learned how to manage her income and maintain her apartment for herself and her children.

LEARNING TO LIVE WITH MENTAL ILLNESS

For a person with mental illness who is homeless, the Community Stabilization Program offers a chance for a fresh start. Through Community Stabilization, consumers learn to maintain their medications, gain insight into living with mental illness, and develop the skills necessary to maintain independent community living. Clients also are assisted in locating appropriate housing in the community and connecting with supportive resources. A total of 60 clients received 5,201 nights of care in FY 2013.

Vincent came to Call for Help and the Community Stabilization Program a little over two years ago. "I was homeless, about to lose my life," he said. Call for Help connected him with resources to end his drug habit, and helped him become compliant with taking his medications necessary to control his mental illness. He qualified for special financial assistance from the Illinois Department of Mental Health toward furnishings and security deposit as well as a portion of his rent on his own apartment. A year and a half later, he continues to do well. He enjoys taking the bus to places around the area, and rides his bicycle to nearby stores in Fairview Heights. He said, "Call for Help helped me when I didn't know what I was going to do. God bless Call for Help."

RECOVERING FROM THE TRAUMA OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

As the designated rape crisis service center for the Metro-East, Call for Help responds 24 hours a day to victims of rape and other sexual assault. Trained advocates arrive at the hospital or police station in the immediate aftermath to provide comfort and support through the medical and legal process. A total of 89 victims were served in FY 2013. Also last year, Call for Help provided counseling at no-cost to 175 adult and child victims to help them heal from the trauma. Art therapy and other techniques help ease the pain. In addition, Call for Help reached 17,000 residents through presentations on sexual assault awareness to school, community and professional groups.

Two days after she was raped, Tiffany was told by the police that her case was denied by the State's Attorney. The Call for Help advocate followed up with police and the State's Attorney on behalf of the victim to investigate the case further and also examine information from another victim of the same perpetrator. As a result, both victims were able to obtain Civil No Contact Orders against the perpetrator. Without our advocate, none of this legal action in their favor would have taken place. Through life skills classes, she learned how to manage her income and maintain her apartment for herself and her children.

MEETING BASIC NEEDS

A job loss or medical expenses can leave a family in poverty and unable to pay for rent and utilities. The Call for Help Information & Referral program connects families with sources of assistance. In FY 2013, 191 households received assistance. A $25,000 energy assistance grant from Ameren Illinois enabled Call for Help to assist families impacted by the extreme heat of summer 2012.

PROVIDING COMFORT IN CRISIS

The Call for Help Suicide & Crisis program served 412 crisis calls during FY 2013. The crisis hotline was discontinued as of Aug. 31, 2013; these calls are now being served by various other crisis hotlines in the Metro-East and in St. Louis.
